

SECTION G | LESSON 85 | WORKSHEET 1

Here is a quotation from the late Steve Jobs, former chief executive of Apple. This is from the commencement address that he delivered at Stanford University on 12 June 2005:

Your work is going to fill a large part of your life, and the only way to be truly satisfied is to do what you believe is great work. And the only way to do great work is to love what you do. If you haven't found it yet, keep looking. Don't settle. As with all matters of the heart, you'll know when you find it. And, like any great relationship, it just gets better and better as the years roll on.

What is your response to these words of advice?

How does this advice resonate with your faith?

Celtic spirituality linked people's faith with everyday life. Imagine you have gone forward to the future. Working with a partner, write down what advice you would give to future generations and what traditions would you tell them about that are part of your own life today?
